TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements .......................................................... ix

Chapter One: The Problem of Fully Informed Reasonable Disagreement ................................................. 1

1.1 Introduction ................................................................. 1

1.2 Evidence and Evidential Situations ................................. 2

1.2.1 On Being in “the Same” Evidential Situation .......... 4

1.2.2 Relevant Facts and Experiences .............................. 6

1.2.3 Reasonableness and Reasonably Held Beliefs .......... 7

1.2.4 Reasonableness and Internal and External Rationality .. 13

1.3 The Problem of Fully Informed Disagreement .............. 16

1.4 Conclusion .......................... 22

Chapter Two: Plantingan Epistemology in Non-Christian Theistic Religions ......................................... 23

2.1 Introduction ................................................................. 23

2.2 Plantinga’s Religious Epistemology: Proper Functionalism and the Standard and Extended Aquinas/Calvin Models .... 24

2.3 Islam and the Standard Aquinas/Calvin Model .............. 28

2.3.1 The Dependency Thesis in Islam ...................... 28

2.3.2 The Design Thesis in Islam ............................ 30

2.3.3 The Immediacy Thesis in Islam .................... 33

2.4 A Uniquely Islamic Extension of the Standard Aquinas/ Calvin Model ....................................................... 35

2.4.1 The Islamic Internal Instigation Thesis ............... 38

2.4.2 The Islamic Scriptural Revelation Thesis ............ 39

2.5 Jewish and Hindu Extensions of the Standard Aquinas/ Calvin Model ..................................................... 39

2.5.1 Towards a Jewish Extension of the Standard Aquinas/ Calvin Model .............................................. 40

2.5.2 Towards a Hindu Extension of the Standard Aquinas/ Calvin Model .............................................. 42

2.6 Conclusion ................................................................. 45
CHAPTER THREE: THE CASE OF PLANTINGA AND HIS COMRADES . . . 47

3.1 Introduction ................................................................. 47
3.2 The Case of Plantinga and His Comrades ............................ 47
3.3 The “No-Defeater” Response to The Case of Plantinga and his Comrades .................................................. 52
3.4 How (1)-(3) Might Hold in The Case of Plantinga and his Comrades .................................................. 65
3.5 Conclusion ................................................................. 72

CHAPTER FOUR: THE CASE OF JOHN AND PAUL ......................... 73

4.1 Introduction ................................................................. 73
4.2 The Case of John and Paul ................................................ 75
4.3 Four Facets of Disagreement Between John and Paul .......... 83
4.4 John’s Logical Beliefs: The Logic of Soku ........................... 85
  4.4.1 The Logic of Soku and Front-Structure ......................... 89
4.5 Paul’s Logical and Metaphysical Beliefs ............................ 92
  4.5.1 Trinity ................................................................. 94
  4.5.2 Incarnation: The Kenosis of the Son of God .................... 95
  4.5.3 Godhead ............................................................ 96
  4.5.4 The Substantiality of the Human Self ......................... 97
4.6 John’s Metaphysical Beliefs: The Metaphysics of Sunyata ..... 98
  4.6.1 Sunyata, Trinity, and Godhead .................................. 100
  4.6.2 Sunyata and Self-Emptying ..................................... 100
  4.6.3 The Doctrine of No-Self .......................................... 101
4.7 The Epistemological Facet of their Disagreement ................ 102
4.8 The Phenomenological-Existential Facet of their Disagreement ................................................................. 108
  4.8.1 Agape, Self-Emptying, and Non-Differentiating Love .... 110
  4.8.2 The Near Side and the Far Side of God ....................... 113
  4.8.3 Self, No-Self, and the Overcoming of Self-Alienation .... 113
4.9 Conclusion ................................................................. 115

CHAPTER FIVE: TRADITION-BASED PERSPETIVALISM ................. 117

5.1 Introduction ................................................................. 117
5.2 Tradition-Based Perspectivalism ...................................... 118
  5.2.1 The Tradition-Source Thesis .................................... 118
    5.2.1.1 Endoxa .......................................................... 120
    5.2.1.2 Traditions of Inquiry ....................................... 120
TABLE OF CONTENTS

5.2.1.3 Logical Principles and Tradition-Transcendent Truths. ............................................. 123
5.2.2 The Perspectival Thesis. .......................................................... 126
5.2.3 The Tradition-Based Thesis. .................................................. 128
5.3 Defending Tradition-Based Perspectivalism .................................... 130
  5.3.1 Against Liberalism ................................................................. 130
  5.3.2 Traditionalism vs. Encyclopaedia and Genealogy ..................... 132
5.4 That (3*) Holds in The Case of John and Paul .............................. 138
  5.4.1 John Reasonably Affirms the Doctrine of No-Self. .................. 140
5.5 Conclusion ................................................................................. 144

CHAPTER SIX: CONCLUSION: OBJECTIONS AND REPLIES, IMPLICATIONS AND APPLICATIONS. .................. 145

6.1 Introduction ......................................................... .......................... 145
6.2 Objections and Replies ............................................................... 145
  6.2.1 A Skeptical Objection ............................................................. 145
  6.2.2 Tradition-Based Perspectivalism is Superfluous ..................... 149
  6.2.3 The Scientific Objection ......................................................... 156
  6.2.4 The “Traditions of Inquiry Aren’t Always What They’re Cracked up to be” Objection. ....................... 159
6.3 Tradition-Based Perspectivalism and Solving The Problem of Fully Informed Reasonable Disagreement 160
  6.3.1 The Case of Lewis and van Inwagen ....................................... 160
  6.3.2 The Case of Plantinga and his Comrades ............................... 168
6.4 Tradition-Based Perspectivalism and The Epistemology of Disagreement ........................................ 170
  6.4.1 The Rational Uniqueness Thesis ............................................. 170
  6.4.2 Constraints on Adequate Definitions of “Epistemic Peer” ........ 173
  6.4.3 Non-Trivial Fully Informed Reasonable Disagreement ............ 174

BIBLIOGRAPHY ................................................................................. 177